BRIBERY TRIALCOURT'S RULING ASSISTS CETONEEvidence of Plot Ruled Out In the Bribery Case.

STATE ATTORNEYS ARE UPSET

Claim Common Pleas Judge Has Overruled the Supreme Court and Will Carry Up Exceptions Immediately.
Representative Nye Repeats Confession, Corroborating Detective Smiley and the Dictagraph.Columbus, O., Nov. 30.—The two state attorneys in the Cetone bribery case are much exercised over a ruling of Judge Evans, who is sitting in the case.According to the judge's decision the state will not be permitted to show that accused legislators, particularly Senators Huffman and Cetone and Rodney J. Diegel, senate sergeant-at-arms, entered into a conspiracy immediately after the bribery exposure to fix up a line of defense whereby they hoped to be able to combat prosecution successfully.The trouble started when the state placed Senator William E. Haas of Delaware on the stand to testify as to the talks Huffman, Cetone and Die-gel had with him relative to going to Senator Huffman's room at the Virginia hotel and preparing a defense.Because Senator Cetone did not mention Diegel's name when Senator Haas says Cetone asked him if he were going to Huffman's room, counsel for the defense contended that there was no evidence of a conspiracy, as Senator Cetone might have wanted Senator Haas to go to the hotel room to talk about the weather or any other subject having no connection with the bribery exposure. Judge Evans held with them.State attorneys contended that the supreme court had included Senator Cetone in its ruling on the question just as much as it included Senator Huffman, because the two solons' names were used together jointly in the decision, which had referred to "them all" and, together with Diegel, as "all three."The state also contended that Cetone's question to Senator Haas, "Are you going down to Huffman's room?"
sufficiently implied that Senator Ce-tone knew that Senator Haas had been acquainted with the purpose for which his presence was wanted. The state attorneys will carry up exceptions at once.

Nye's Testimony.

Those who had expected Senator Cetone's counsel to give Representative George B. Nye of Pike county, who recently confessed to having accepted a bribe from Burns detectives and that his annual legislative graft amounted to $10,000, a severe cross-examination, were fooled. They did not attempt to cross-examine him on his testimony, but asked him if he had not confessed, and if the reason he was testifying for the state was because he had been promised immunity. Nye admitted he had expected clemency.When called for direct examination, Nye kept the court waiting a few minutes while he brushed his hair. He seemed nervous when he took the stand. The direct examination was brief. He identified both Cetone and Smiley, and then Turner asked: "Did you see Smiley and Ce-tone together on the evening of April 27?" Nye replied that he did and that it was in Smiley's room at the Chittenden hotel between 5 and 6 o'clock. He said Cetone and Smiley were in the room when he arrived and that later Diegel and Huffman came in."What did you do then?" asked the prosecutor.
"I immediately left," answered Nye.
Nye's testimony is corroborative of that given by Detective Smiley and the dictagraph stenographer.

Monday Night.Columbus, O., Nov. 30.—The controises to be settled one way or another Monday night, when the Columbus chamber of commerce directors and committee meet to consider a written statement from Governor-elect Cox.

This statement was promised by Adin behalf of the governor.The chamber of commerce likely will insist that if it pays for the ball and conducts it as a demonstration of hospitality to the new governor, it shall decide to whom invitations are informal as possible. Chamber of commerce officials disclaim any intenhis crimes to the excessive use of Last Important Town in the Province of a Port on the Adriatic Sea—Characteristics of the Turkish Soldiers.London, Nov. 30.—Two divisions of Turkish reserves surrendered to the Bulgars near the little village of Mar-hamli, between the port of Dedeaghatch, on the Aegean, and Demetika, on the railroad line to the north. De-metika is but a short distance southwest of Adrianople, around which the Bulgarian and Serb besiegers are steadily tightening their lines. The announcement of the surrender of the Turkish troops comes from Sofia.There is rejoicing in Belgrade over the fact that Dibra, the last important town in Albania, has fallen to Servian arms. The capture of Dibra and the peaceful occupation of Durazzo, on the Adriatic, from which there may yet come fighting with Austria, present the two contrasting characteristics of the Turk's fighting men in this war.At Dibra the troops were worn by days of hand-to-hand fighting. They had been beaten at Uskub, Salonica and Monastir. They had seen their generals kill themselves on the field of battle and their officers flee, yet they could still fight rather than surrender when the Serbs came up to them at Dibra. At Durazzo, on the other hand, there was a fresh garrison, well provisioned, which surren-ded without firing a shot. The Serbs swaggered into the city and their general sent a telegram, a direct slap at Austria: "We now have occupied Du-razzo for perpetuity."

Armistice May Be Signed Today.

Constantinople, Nov. 30.—The council of ministers is still sitting. A newspaper in close connection with the government asserts that it has received a direct intimation that an armistice will be signed today. The terms of the armistice will leave Adrianople to the Turks. The peace negotiations will begin immediately on a basis which has already been determined.

wires after the pole had been burned away. At the bottom notice the peculiar

COLLEGIATE SPIRIT MARKS SECOND ANNUAL OHIO STATE BANQUET

Rally Day Banquet Held at Odd Fellows' Temple a Most Delightful Affair.

FAYETTE COUNTY "OHIO STATE" SOCIETY FORMED

Sixty-eight Students and Members of Alumni of O. S. U. Join in Feasting and Pleasure, and Air Resounds With College Yells and Song—Elegant Banquet Served By Rebekahs.

"Ohio State" was the clarion call which bore to the flood tide of enthusiasm thousands of students and alumni of Ohio's great university at the sixty "Rally Day" banquets held all over the Buckeye state last night. Spurred on by having held the banner banquet of the state at the initiation of the rally day movement last year, Fayette county again rose gloriously to the occasion in the banquet of last night held in the I. O. O. F. temple.

If possible her second banquet proved a more brilliant success than the first and its feasting, oratory and splendid music reached a climax in the establishing of the Fayette County Alumni upon the basis of a permanent organization, a move which was conceded to be the very acme of the rally day spirit.

At half past eight o'clock the banquet hall was thrown open, its long tables beautifully arranged in the form of a fan with the toast table at the head. The tables, gleaming with silver and crystal and artistically embellished with pink and white carnations and greenery, were laid with sixty-eight covers. Carnations were the guest favors and scarlet and gray the colors of the badges.

The Daughters of Rebekah, assisted by the men of the lodge as waiters, served a four course banquet that was richly deserving the encomiums it received. Every viand was hot and delicious and the daughters certainly achieved prestige in its serving.

Fayette county was specially honored by having as banquet guests and generous contributors to the conviviality, Prof. W. W. Boyd and "Mother Ewing", the noted Ohio State yell master, and the Ohio State Glee club quartet. The banquet started off with a quartet and a university yell and throughout the two hours of its serving the splendid quartet and typical college stunts kept the guests on the qui vive with expectation and merriment.

The quartet voices were exceedingly good and encore after encore met with response, many of the encores local hits that brought down the house. "Silver" Craig seemed to be especially dear to the singers and figured prominently in songs of recollection.

Glen McCoy, secretary of the student organization, was chairman of the student committee and kept everything going. The hall rang with "rah! rah! rahs!" Raahs for the Glee club, for Prof. Boyd, for "Mother Ewing", whose jolly personality won immediate response from every guest, for the Daughters, "Becky's Rah," for the committee of the banquet—raahs for everybody! Merriment ran the gamut and high college spirits the keynote of the evening.

Mr. Harry Rankin filled the role of toastmaster with aplomb, interspersing the toasts with pertinent stories.

The first suggestion of the serious, deep, underlying purpose of the rally day, came with the address of the speaker of the evening, Prof. W. W. Boyd.

Prof. Boyd and "Mother" Ewing prefaced the address with a tilt of wits thoroughly enjoyed by the guests and the speaker's introductory stories, met with hearty laughter.

But Prof. Boyd had come to the banquet by no means merely to entertain. He had come to inaugurate the Ohio State Alumni Association, a move which was conceded to be the very acme of the rally day spirit. At half past eight o'clock the banquet hall was thrown open, its long tables beautifully arranged in the form of a fan with the toast table at the head. The tables, gleaming with silver and crystal and artistically leader and a politician in the highest and best sense.

Prof. Boyd said that Ohio State did not need students—the enrollment now being 3500, but it needs equipment, time and money to give that army of students everything for which such a remarkable institution stands.

Prof. Boyd sat down amid great applause.

Alden Baughn responded to the toast, "Athletics", by giving the guests insight into present progress and plans of Ohio State's football team and other athletic organizations.

Frank L. Thompson had the toast "New Campus". Before responding to his subject Mr. Thompson asked permission to present the claim of the Ohio State Glee club to local recognition. After having heard the Glee club quartet the guests heartily endorsed the speaker's statement that the entire Glee club could give one of the finest and most attractive of College Glee Club concerts, and it is earnestly to be hoped that this club will be scheduled among the season's attractions. Mr. Thompson enlarged upon the beautiful campus and its unusual possibilities in a fluent toast.

The quartet was then called out and so vigorously recalled again and again that it was finally compelled to sing, "It's An Awful Death to Be Worked to Death," before the insatiable guests gave them respite.

Following suggestions to Fayette county organization from Mr. Earl Barnett and Mr. Ralph Penn, the banquet committee, "Mother" Ewing made a red hot speech in favor of organization.

Mr. Howard Hegler, of the Alumni, and others followed with suggestions and as a result the Fayette County Ohio State Association was organized. It was the consensus of opinion that Messrs. Barnett and Penn had shown such proficiency in the management of the banquets, that they could not be excelled as members of the acting committee of the association, with power to add a third committeeman.

A vote of thanks to the students who had so aided in the banquet preparations and in the decoration of the hall, which by means of hundreds of college pennants, took on the semblance of the University hall, and the guests rose to sing "Carmen Ohio", the signal for the breaking up of the banquet.

D. T. & I. Abolishes The Drinking Cup

Travelers on the D. T. & I. must carry individual drinking cups in the future if they would quench their thirst while aboard the trains. An order has gone out to abolish all public drinking cups on the train in order to comply with the state law prohibiting the use of public drinking cups.

However, paper cups costing one cent each will be on sale at stations and on the trains, so that the passenger need not remain thirsty if he possesses a single cent piece.

The abolishment of drinking cups was done to prevent the spread of tuberculosis and other contagious diseases, and within a short time all public drinking cups will be a thing of the past.

Judge Ferneding Seriously Injured

Judge H. L. Ferneding, of Dayton, who was in this city on the Circuit court bench this week, is lying at his home suffering from very severe injuries sustained when a horse reared and threw him to the ground.

Judge Ferneding was riding horseback when the animal became frightened and threw him to the earth, and striking him a severe blow with its steel shod hoof, tearing an ugly wound in the forehead just over the left eye, and leaving the skull exposed.

His injuries are such that he will be confined to his home for some two weeks.

COMING TO THE EMPIRE.

"The Shepherd of the Hills," Harold Bell Wright's novel, which has been accorded the largest sale in the history of publishing in America, has been made into a play by Mr. Wright with the assistance of Elsbury W. Reynolds and Lem B. Parker. It will be seen for the first time in this city at the Empire theater, Wednesday, Dec. 4th.

It tells a beautiful story of the Ozark mountains, a story that holds the auditor by its thrills from the beginning to the end. It is unique in character-drawing, giving to the stage a somewhat new atmosphere. The beauty of the Ozark mountain region lends itself to some very effective stage pictures, and Gaskill and MacVitty, the producers, are said to have given the play an exceptionally beautiful mounting.

No Trace Of Burglars Found

The burglars who robbed the Henry Sparks hardware store Thursday and secured some $125 worth of guns, cutlery and other articles, have evaded capture, and so far as known suspicion points to no one, although it is generally conceded that the work was that of local talent who were familiar with the surroundings.

Employees of the store have expressed the belief that the burglars were present when they first opened up the store, and two shot guns lay on the counter when the robbery was first discovered early in the morning, and after the store had been locked up while the police were on the way to the scene, and when reopened, one gun only remained upon the counter.

Success Attends Securing Contracts

The work of securing contracts from the property owners along the proposed line of the interurban from this city to Hillsboro, is progressing very nicely, and Mrs. Chas. Sollars, the man back of the movement, is greatly pleased with the success which has attended the solicitation for contracts calling for the sum of $4 per acre.

First of the week Mr. Sollars and Mr. Grafton will renew the work and hope to have most of the property owners' contracts by middle of the month.

Not only are the citizens along the line in this county pleased with the prospect, but also those of Highland county, and business men in both Washington and Hillsboro are deeply interested in the project.

Will Not Remove Sunday Trains

All Sunday trains on the C. H. & D. will travel as usual on Sundays, with the exception of No. 202, due here on Sunday at 8:42, which will arrive at 9:36 a. m. until further notice.

The rumor that the trains would be discontinued was incorrect, and at a recent meeting of the officials it was decided to continue the trains with the exception of the change as above noted.

No excursion rates will be in effect on the Sunday trains, full fare being necessary.

Recovering From Serious Injury

Chas. Storts, the Bloomington blacksmith, who had two fingers of his right hand severed by a circular saw while at work at his shop a few days ago, is recovering from the injury, but will not be able to resume his work for some time.

The index and middle fingers were severed, and the third finger badly lacerated by the rapidly revolving saw.

Xenia Defeated In Last Game

History has repeated itself quite frequently with the Xenia ball team this year, and in the last game of the season, played with the Alumni team the High School team again took the goose egg end of the score, the Alumni having 19 points.

One or two games is all the team has won this season, Washington defeating them twice.

Famous Case Is Up Once More

In the Circuit court at Hillsboro this week the case of Ward Allen, plaintiff in error against Lucy Gibson, was taken up.

Miss Gibson is the girl who sustained horrible injuries about four years ago while working in Allen's Laundry at Greenfield, when her hair became entangled in a shafting and the entire scalp was torn from her head. She was awarded $3,000 damages.

Allen appealed the case to the Circuit court on the grounds that the court erred in its charge to the jury, and that the verdict was against the weight of the evidence.

Brief arguments were heard in the case and the attorneys were given until Saturday to file their briefs. The court will decide the case later.

Advertisements of persons desiring work, if limited to 10 words, will be carried free of charge. No business advt. inserted without pay

PATRICK IS FREE.

Albert T. Patrick, the New York lawyer, accused twelve years ago of a monstrous crime—the deliberate and premeditated murder of his client, Millionaire Rice, of Texas, walked forth from Sing Sing prison a free man Thanksgiving day.

The crime was easily the most sensational of its time and the trial of Patrick attracted world-wide attention. The newspapers of the day "played up" the Patrick story as the leading news item of the day. The world stood appalled at the crime which was charged to Patrick and the world hung breathless in anticipation of the result of the great trial.

With the conviction of Patrick and the imposition of the sentence of death, the number of people who were intensely interested in the case began to diminish. Other sensational news of the succeeding days crowded subsequent proceedings in the Patrick case farther and farther into the less prominent columns. From a column each day the space devoted to the Patrick case dwindled to a half, then a fourth and so on down to an inch, then to an entire absence of any report at all for days at a time.

The busy public soon forgot Patrick and the great murder case—another generation came on the stage of action.

But to the condemned man in the death cell at Sing Sing the importance grew proportionately as it waned with the public.

Patrick fought each second of time for his life and from the time his first reprieve came, just as the death march to the chair of execution was about to begin, he has gained inch by inch through all the twelve long weary years. Reprieve followed reprieve and finally came commutation of the sentence to life imprisonment and still Patrick fought on for freedom.

Finally on Thanksgiving day, Governor Dix with a stroke of his pen set the accused man free.

People who lived through the Patrick trial will disagree as to the justice of the action.

Now, as during the trial there are many who adhere to the belief in his innocence.

Guilty or innocent, Patrick has shown remarkable nerve and fighting power and the larger proportion of the public is inclined to receive the granting of the pardon favorably and after the lapse of many years to give him the benefit of the doubt.

Upon his future conduct, in what must of necessity be one series of trying situations, will largely depend whether the number of Patrick's supporters or accusers increases.

He has been given his chance and in the few years that remain to him he can do much to blot out the unpleasant past and build anew a name by which posterity will know him.

What a glorious chance it is for a big strong innocent man and at the same time what an appalling one—one impossible for a guilty man to face unflinchingly.

IS THERE A WAY?

Just now the municipalities throughout Ohio, with very few exceptions indeed are having a difficult time making financial ends meet and still provide adequate police and fire protection, maintain and construct proper sanitary systems, keep up street repairs and so on and so forth ad libitum and at the same time meet all fixed charges.

The cause is almost universally ascribed to the new taxing laws, but whether that cause be the correct one or not it is the fact which is of the utmost importance, and a fact it is that something is radically wrong. To make the best of a bad condition seems to be the chief end of officialdom in all cities in the state.

Our own city is no exception to the rule. There are many things which Washington must do without—many things the city needs badly too—the answer to the impatient public is no money and it "goes too" in the language of the street. It is the answer to everything.

Just now the number of burglaries committed is proof that our police force is wholly unable to furnish adequate protection to lives and property. One man to guard the lives and the property in a city of, conservatively, six thousand people is ridiculous. No one man can do it—no two men can do it properly.

But what are we to do—is the no money answer to be taken as sufficient in that matter as in everything else.

It does seem that Washington is having a little bit worse time than necessary. If we have no money to keep the streets in repair, no money to buy much-needed fire fighting apparatus, no money to construct a sewer system, no money to repair the library building, no money to buy a lot for the armory, no money to build streets that the property owners grade and put curb and gutters on, no money to do anything else, it does seem that we should have money enough to employ policemen.

In the case of this city at least, the no money talk seems to be carried beyond the limit justified, even by admittedly trying condition of law.

There should be some way out.

Poetry For Today

RECESSIONAL.

God of our fathers, known of old,
Lord of our far-flung battle line,
Beneath whose awful Hand we hold Dominion over palm and pine—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

The tumult and the shouting dies;
The Captains and the Kings depart;
Still stands Thine ancient sacrifice,
An humble and a contrite heart,
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

Far-called, our navies melt away;
On dune and headland sinks the fire;
Lo, all our pomp of yesterday
Is one with Nineveh and Tyre!
Judge of the Nations, spare us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

If, drunk with sight of power, we loose
Wild tongues that have not Thee
in awe,
Such boasting as the Gentiles use,
Or lesser breeds without the Law—
Lord God of Hosts, be with us yet,
Lest we forget—lest we forget!

For heathen heart that puts her trust
In reeking tube and iron shard,
All valiant dust that builds on dust,
And guarding, calls not Thee to guard,
For frantic boast, and foolish word—
Thy Mercy on Thy People, Lord.
—Rudyard Kipling.

Why Buy Red Cross Seals?

Why you should buy Red Cross Christmas Seals, may be answered most effectively in the words of a twelve-year-old boy in the Duluth (Minn.) schools, who gave the following as his reason in a composition on this subject:

"The reason I put Red Cross Seals on my Christmas gifts is because every seal I use counts one cent toward stamping out tuberculosis in the city and for the maintenance of hospitals for that purpose. The seals are also used to raise funds to teach people the value of fresh air. Another reason I buy them is because my father died of tuberculosis and I buy them so that other little boys and girls won't lose their father as I did. Another reason is that if I am ever threatened with tuberculosis the doctors will have a fund to try to prevent it."

Would Annul The Marriage Of His Son If Possible

August Belmont Employs Detectives to Detect a Breach.

New York, Nov. 30.—It was learned that August Belmont is trying to find some way of having the marriage of his son Raymond to Ethel Lorraine, the actress and former member of the Winter Garden company, declared invalid, and that lawyers and private detectives have been employed to find a legal loophole whereby the young man may be freed from the matrimonial yoke. William P. Sheridan, head of the Sheridan agency, has been spending a considerable part of the last few days in Jersey City in an endeavor to discover a flaw in the license papers or in the performance of the ceremony. So far he has met with little success.

Roosevelt Will Be There At Conference Of Moosers

Chairman Dixon on National Conference of Progressive Party.

Washington, Nov. 30.—"Colonel Roosevelt will certainly attend the national conference of the Progressive party at Chicago on Dec. 10 and 11, and Governor Johnson of California may do so," announced Senator Dixon, national chairman of the Bull Moose party.

"So far as I am aware, there are no differences among the leaders of the party which could justify the statement that Mr. Pinckney or Mr. Garfield is seeking to oust Mr. Perkins from leadership."

It was here that he stated that whether or not he will attempt to have the second will probated will be considered carefully. This will, said Patrick, is now on file in the surrogate's court of New York county, having been rejected at the time the charges were brought against him.

"A charge of forgery was made against me at that time," he said, "but these charges were not sustained."

When a kid who was behind the alleged conspiracy, Patrick went into an extended review of the Rice will case and said: "My conviction was engineered by enemies of mine, enemies whom I made through my fidelity to the will of Mr. Rice. The court of appeals in its dissenting opinion said that murder had never been proved in my case."

James W. Osborne, the assistant district attorney who prosecuted Patrick, said that there has never been a plain case of first degree murder than the death of Rice. Francis P. Garvan characterized Governor Dix's action as an outrage. Garvan helped Mr. Osborne in the prosecution.

Attacks on the Letter Boxes in London Are Renewed.

London, Nov. 30.—The city pillar postal boxes were well guarded throughout the day and night, but the outrages of Thursday night were renewed at the letter boxes of the city postoffice. There was considerable damage done at the general postoffice and at Cannon street, Grace Church and Queen Victoria streets. At one of the frequent clearances at the new general postoffice a clerk found that a quantity of paraffin which had been poured into an opening had saturated many letters. No match was found, and it is surmised that the perpetrator of the outrage had been frightened off before the work had been completed.

FURNISHED INTOXICANTS DRAWS $50 AND COSTS

Finley Sprague, a laborer, who has been engaged in various occupations about the city, Friday entered a plea of guilty to furnishing intoxicating liquor to "Boots" Mickle, the man who was recently sent out of town for bootlegging, and was fined $50 and the costs.

Sprague's arrest followed that of Mickle, and it is alleged that Mickle gave information regarding the transaction, and when Sprague was confronted with the facts in the case he entered a plea of guilty.

The man was ordered committed to the workhouse until the fine was paid, and was sent back to the county jail with a day or two of grace during which he was to either raise the money or prepare for the workhouse.

Sprague was later released upon his promise to leave the city immediately, which he did, going toward Portsmouth to work on the railroad at that point.

It is rumored that Sprague gave some information to the authorities which may be of assistance in bringing other bootleggers to justice.

QUEER LUMBEYACKS OF THE NORTHWEST

Many Months of Hard Labor Followed by a Grand Drunk
in Nearest Town

EVERY NATIONALITY REPRESENTED

Strict Discipline in the Camps—No
Liquor—Lights Out at 9 O'Clock—Reveille at 4—Respective Value of Races.

In the great northwest history has been largely made by a man almost unknown as yet to song and story, the "man with the ax," known in everyday parlance as the lumberjack.

In the fall just before winter sets in the lumbermen in the business centers send out their tote teams, so called because they are used to transfer the necessities of life to the scene of the winter's work.

Thousands of men from the docks, the harvest fields—from everywhere—follow these teams to the woods for the season. From the moment they join until camp breaks up in the spring there is hard, unrelenting work.

The strictest discipline is maintained; the men are up at 4 o'clock in the morning and work until dark with the exception of the noon-time stop for dinner. Lights are out every night at 9 o'clock.

The cook, a very important person in the camp, with his assistants, is first up in the morning, and one of the most noticeable things about modern logging camps is the great change in the bill of fare. The noon-day meal is usually prepared and carried out to where the men are working to save time. The cook brings the dinner hot and the men eat it, sitting on freshly felled logs, often with the thermometer registering 30 below zero.

But it is at the evening meal, when the day's work is finished, that the men are at their best; there they talk and laugh and enjoy themselves. After the meal is over they go to the bunkhouse and light their pipes, sing songs and tell stories.

In every camp is a general supply store, where the men may procure the necessities of life. No liquor is sold, as the rule against drinking is rigidly enforced. Often men, craving the stimulant to which they are accustomed, drink patent medicines in place of the forbidden whiskey.

In the average camp nearly every nationality is represented. The foreman will tell you that he likes the Irish for bosses, the Germans, Swedes and Finns for hard work, while he finds the men of the southern nations, the French and Italians, too light and erratic for the heavy work, besides being too quarrelsome, interfering with the discipline of camp life.

Four-fifths of the men employed in lumber camps are intemperate, it is said. The long enforced abstinence in the winter but aggravates their craving for liquor, and in the spring when they are released from the discipline of camp life they hurry to the nearest town with their earnings. What happens then is often a very short story, sometimes a bitterly tragic one.

LIVES UP TO ITS NAME.

Have you seen that new dance they call the motor dance?
No—what's it like?
Oh, it's a kind of a breakdown.

Inconsistent Man.

He tells funny stories about how a woman drives a horse, and steers his automobile up a telegraph pole.

He is always adding postscripts to his letters—but he uses the long distance telephone to explain what he omitted in his business communication.

He can explain the wireless telegraph system to his wife, but he cannot understand her description of a new bonnet.

He loves to tell of the splendid exercise of sawing wood—but he is willing to pay another man to enjoy the exercise.

He writes cards to the papers against problem plays—and swears at the ticket window if he cannot get a front seat when the ballet comes to town.

He doesn't go to church on Sunday because he wants to read the paper—but through the week he is satisfied to glance at the headlines on his way down town.

Congressman Post Leaves Tomorrow For Washington

Congressman J. D. Post, of this, the Seventh District, leaves in the morning on the 10:30 B. & O. train for Washington, D. C., to attend the second session of the 62nd Congress, which convenes next week.

Congressman Post is greatly pleased over the prospects of securing the appropriation for the new $100,000 postoffice building in this city, as definite action is expected on the matter early in the coming session, when the general appropriation bill, which includes the $100,000 appropriation for the building here comes up. Mr. Post states that prospects of the appropriation being made could not be brighter at present, and he is confident of securing the building for Washington.

Mr. Post is beginning to find out what it means to have control of Federal patronage, as he has been overwhelmed with applications from all over the district.

Many positions will be filled with new faces during the coming administration, and the office-seekers are very active in the effort to land one of the plums.

Fire Marshal After Firebugs

For the sixth time within the past few months, Peebles, in Adams Co., has suffered from fires of incendiary origin, this time the loss reached $8,000, and it was with difficulty that the village was saved from almost total destruction.

The fire bug has always laid his plans carefully, and this time after putting the fire engine out of commission, he applied the torch at the midnight hour, and the flames had acquired considerable headway before they were discovered.

It required a half hour to place the fire engine in working order, and the fire was then easily controlled.

A deputy state fire marshal was summoned to the place and is making a rigid investigation of the attempt to burn the town to the ground.

Celebrating.

"What was that terrible noise going on in Popkin's apartment last night?" asked Wickley of the janitor.

"They were celebrating their wedding," smiled the janitor. "Mrs. Popkin was hitting Popkin on the head with a rolling pin."

"Knocking wood for luck, eh?" grinned Wickley, as he passed on, while the janitor chuckled.—Harper's Weekly.

But He Got the Pin.

A man who believes in the old saying, "See a pin and pick it up; all day you will have good luck," saw a pin lying on the street. Bending down to get it his hat fell off and rolled into the gutter, his eyeglasses fell off and broke on the pavement, his suspenders gave way behind, he burst the buttonhole on the back of his shirt collar, and he all but lost his false teeth—but he got the pin!

Hartman Theater

It seems that Columbus will never waver in its loyalty to John Hyams and Leila McIntyre in "The Girl of My Dreams" for the business on the occasion of its visit to the Hartman less than two months ago was so great that the management asked the producer to send it back for another engagement. Several hundred people were turned away at that time, unable to obtain a seat and on December 7th—Saturday afternoon and night—they will have another opportunity to see this production. A large company of good principals and a chorus that can sing and dance together with the Christmas tree which so delights the children go to make "The Girl of My Dreams" engagement an occasion long to be remembered.

VESPER SERVICE AT Y. M. C. A.

Tomorrow at 4 o'clock, there will be a service at the Young Men's Christian Association building especially for men.

These services are proving very interesting and helpful, and are just the kind of a meeting a man wants to attend. Plenty of singing, and those good old tunes that just suit the voice and inspire the heart. Just a half hour at the closing of the Sabbath. All men are urged to attend.

Mr. Frank Fullerton will lead tomorrow and give a short talk.

History of the Turkey.
The turkey, rather than the eagle, is the real American bird. Eagles are found all over the world, but the turkey is a foreigner everywhere except in America, his native home. The wild turkey of America is the progenitor of all the turkeys in the world. In North America, Mexico and Honduras the turkey was found in great numbers by the white men, but in South America the bird is unknown. Scientists are agreed that the turkey resides outside of this continent only as an immigrant, and that his native home must be sought somewhere north of the Isthmus of Panama.

One Egg Full Meal For Family of Six

Phineas Whackersinger's Three Foot Tall Hens Give Three Pound Fruit in Great Notch, N. J.

From the closely guarded hot houses and steam-heated and air-cooled henneries of Phineas Whackersinger, the Great Notch (N. J.) Burbank, the astounding report has percolated that by next season Mr. Whackersinger will put on the market sure-enough white Brahma eggs as big as eggplants, and each one capable of supplying a square meal for a family of six.

Phineas Whackersinger, Jr., told in strictest confidence to a girl friend of his who is a chum of a girl friend of the writer, "that before all the violets is plucked Pop" (meaning the parental Whackersinger) "is going to bust the egg market wide open and reduce the cost of living to a state where folks won't have to think no more about what they're going to eat than what air they're going to breathe."

Young Mr. Whackersinger said that his father had raised a pair of three-foot-tall white Brahma hens and one forty-inch Brahma rooster. These Brahmas have not got their full growth, and will not have reached the laying age for several months.

Expects Three-Pound Eggs.

When they do attain maturity the Great Notch Burbank looks for two-pound or even three-pound eggs, with every hen laying three to five eggs a day.

Furthermore and moreover it is averred that Wizard Whackersinger will be able to feed and nourish his great hens at a cost not greater than two cents a day per hen, and that even this small cost will be offset when he breaks these hens to harness and compels them to haul their own eggs to market.

Hugo Pebbles, the Great Notch tank tender, who is a master-gatherer of countryside gossip, was questioned in regard to the reports of the seemingly miraculous feat of Phineas Whackersinger. Mr. Pebbles said:

"Don't you go to buildin' no high hopes on them three-foot hens of P. Whackersinger. He raised a ten-pound turnip once that took three prizes at the country fair, but when that turnip was dressed down an' cooked it boiled away to the size of a radish. I don't know what he done to them Brahmas to rear 'em up three feet, but I reckon it warn't nothin' natural."

Rooster Made Them Work.

"My cousin, Joel Pebbles, climbed up on a tree 'longside the Whackersinger place last night an' looked down into that hennerie with a pair o' night glasses. He seen them three-foot hens all right, but they warn't actin' usual hens. One of 'em had a pail an' the other one had a lantern an' they was goin' around lookin' for night-crawlers. The rooster was standin' off to one side givin' 'em orders. When they'd got that pail full o' worms they carries it to the rooster. Instead o' thankin' 'em that big loafer of a rooster cussed 'em out for bein' too slow an' then et up all the worm hisself."

"My cousin, Joel Pebbles, may take a nip o' applejack now an' then, but mostly he's a truthful man. If what he says is true, them three-foot hen ain't never goin' to lay up to Phineas Whackersinger's expectations. If he gets one egg a month from them hens he'll be lucky an' if he wants to hatch out that eggs he'll have to get a trained nurse to assist in the hatchin' process, for that rooster ain't got the strength to go 'round rustling grub for him.

Never Saw the Egg's Inside.

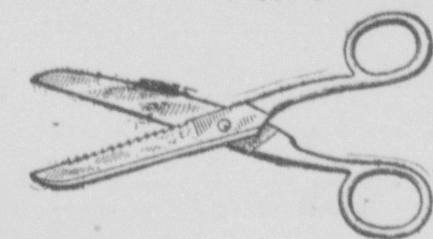

"Old Jim Notter, Newt Notter's grandfather, used to tell about a relative of his'n that raised a pair of three-foot leghorns during the Mexican War. It didn't cost a cent a day to feed that pair o' giant pullets. They'd eat anything from fence rails to wagon wheels. They'd eat bark off trees an' knobs off of doors. They was shot at an' stabbed by neighbors, but their hide was tougher'n brass."

"They laid one egg between 'em, that pair of giant hens, but what was inside that egg warn't never discovered. No axe could break it an' no fire could burn it. Two blacksmiths went into declines tryin' to smash a hole in it. Finally it was turned over to the Government to use in the war. Old Jim Notter says it was shot out of a special-built mortar an' killed eighty Mexicans. All o' which convinces me that P. Whackersinger is goin' to get more notoriety nor benefit out o' them three-foot Brahmas."

Wizard Whackersinger positively refused to comment on his new breed of Brahmas.

Scissors with a Saw-Tooth.

A very handy tool can be made from an old pair of scissors or shears, as shown in the accompanying sketch. One blade is cut with a set of saw teeth inclined toward the handle. These teeth hold the material fast, and prevent it slipping toward the point of the shears. Rubber sheeting, strips, and all kinds of soft packing can be easily cut with square or inclined ends. It matters not in what position the scissors are held; they will cut without slipping. In using these scissors for rubber and other slippery goods, the saw-toothed blade should be on the bottom to obtain the best results. Heavy rubber and packing can be cut with less effort, as it is not necessary to hold the scissors against the goods to prevent slipping. The same design of lower blade can be applied to plumbers' and metal-workers' shears with a change in the relative positions of the holding and cutting blades. If the saw-toothed blade is kept on the bottom of the goods, the edge will be left rough; but by reversing the shears, so that the saw teeth come on top, the edge is left just as clean as if no teeth were used. The piece cut off however is rough on the edge on the left or the right-hand piece cut off.—Scientific American.

Scissors with a Saw-Tooth Blade.

"Sluggard-Wakers."

An English writer upon "Old Church Life" devotes a chapter of his book to the "sluggard-wakers." After having described the duties of these officials and their manner of discharging them in England and Scotland, he quotes from Mrs. Earle's "The Sabbath in Puritan New England," to show that the same practice prevailed here in early days. The business of keeping the congregation awake belonged to the tithing-man of the parish in case the preacher failed to that extent. Some of the stories prove that certain of the ministers were capable of rendering the duties of the tithing-man light.

At Newbury on one occasion an eccentric preacher awoke a sleeper in a novel manner. He observed a man, named Mark, sleeping, and made use of the Biblical words: "I say unto you, mark the perfect man and behold the upright." But in the midst of his monotonous sermon voice, he roared out the word "mark" in a shout that brought the dozing man to his feet, bewildered but wide-awake.

Mr. Moody of York, Maine, employed a similar device to awaken and mortify sleepers in meeting. He shouted, "Fire! fire! fire!" And when the startled men jumped up, calling out, "Where?" he roared back in turn, "In the next world, for sleeping sinners!"

During a visit to a church in Sarina, Sweden, Du Chaillu saw in the pulpit, near the Bible, what resembled a policeman's club, at the end of which was a thick piece of leather. This had been used, until within a few years, to awake the sleepers, the parson striking the pulpit with it forcibly, thus compelling attention. Near the pulpit was a long pole, rounded at one end, with which the sexton, it appears, used to poke the ribs of sleepers. These two implements, intended to keep the church awake, were used extensively in many out-of-the-way places in Sweden twenty and thirty years ago, and at the place in question within a few years, but were discontinued by the present pastor. Now, pinches of snuff are often offered to the sleeper, who, after sneezing for a considerable time, finds his drowsiness entirely gone.

"You're sleepy, John," said a Scotch minister, pausing in the midst of a drowsy discourse, and looking hard at the man he addressed, he added, "Take some snuff, John."

"Put the snuff in the sermon, sir," replied John.
